

NFL 2020 is my attempt to make an old-fashioned table-top game, with dice, charts and cards, in which each of the two coaches (you and your opponent) can assemble whatever kind of team they want, and each player (card) contributes to the outcome of every play. Though the game is expandable in any number of ways (i.e. more players from which to draft--even every current NFL player, multiple formations (like running with fullback (F), 2 running backs (RBs) and two tight ends (TEs), or passing with 4 wide receivers), more plays, ratings for man to man vs. zone, etc.) I have kept it simple, with only some of the best players of 2020, as well as a few, mostly injured that year, using their 2019 performances (as well as a few bad ones), and only ten plays (O: the run (R), play-action pass (PP), screen pass (Sc—essentially a run), short pass (SP), and long pass (LP), and D: short yardage (SY), run defense (R), pass defense (P), blitz (B) and long pass defense (prevent, Pr)). Any more than these and the math gets kind of gnarly.

I suggest: first, cut out the players' datas from the Players' Datas Sheets pgs. (3–8.5), and attach them to 3 by 5 inch index cards (tape seems to work best. I have to admit some of the ratings there are largely guesswork—we don't get a lot of TV games here--any help?). You will need to acquire two six-sided (conventional) dice, and two 10-sided dice (one for the 10s and the other for the 1s, in order to use the 5 Final Play Results Charts, pgs. 9 – 13). If you just want to play games I suggest you use the following formations: O: 2 running backs (RBs), QB, O-line (1 center (C), 2 guards (Gs), and 2 tackles (OTs)), 1 tight end (TE), and 2 wide receivers (WRs,--1 off the line), and D: D-line (2 tackles (DTs), and 2 defensive ends (DEs)), 3 linebackers (LBs), 2 safeties (Ss), and 2 cornerbacks (CBs), and the suggested teams (see pg. 2 at bottom), roughly equivalent in overall ability, though suggested Team 1 is a little better on D, and suggested Team 2 is a little better on O. The resulting Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays Number Sheets are also provided (pgs. 18 and 18.5). If the coaches want to draft their own players (cards) and choose their own formations and participating players, which is the point of the game after all, then together they should aim to complete the 50 final entries in the two Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays Numbers Sheets (using pgs. 15 and 15.5, two of each--see below--lots of math, but only necessary to be done once for as many games as wanted).

The game includes 2 Fs, 4 RBs, 4 QBs, 2 Cs, 4 Gs, 4 OTs, 4 TEs, 7 WRs, 4 DTs, 4 DE, 8 LBs, 4 Ss, and 7 CBs, 2 field goal kickers (K-FGs) 2 punters (Ps) and 2 kickoff kickers (K-KO), (cards), 64 in all. All O formations must have at least 1 RB, exactly 1 QB, 1 C, 2 Gs, and 2 OT, and at least 2 Receivers (WRs or TEs). All D formations must have at least 1 DT, 2 DEs, 2 LBs, 2 Ss and 2 CBs.

The drafting is as follows: 1 choice, 2 choices, 2 choices...2 choices, 1 choice, with the coach chosen (flip a coin?, roll of dice?) picking whether to go first or second.

QBs are considered part of the receivers unit, with any WRs and the TE if one is used. A second TE (their coach's choice) is considered part of the O - line unit, with the C, Gs and OTs. If the QB's R rating is positive, he may be considered part of the backfield unit, with the RB(s) and any F, for that play. Defensive units are the D- line, the LBs, and defensive backs (DBs).

To compute the Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays numbers, each coach will first add the ratings of each unit, three on O and three on D, for each play. Then multiply the highest and next highest of each of these 3 sums by 4 and 3 respectively, and the lowest by 2. In case of ties, choose either. Then add the resulting three products for each play, O and D. (Using the theory that the best players make the rest of the unit better, and the best units make the rest of the team better.) Then enter these, and the results of the Plays Vs. Plays Chart (pg. 14) in the appropriate lines in the Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays Number Sheets (pg. 15) to produce the numbers. Then roll the 10 sided dice, yielding a number from 0 to 99, add the two numbers, and consult the Play Result Chart for that O play. In these charts, F means fumble (recovered by the D), Int interception, INJ injury (see below), P penalty, L loss, I incomplete, NG no gain, and G gain. Note that the results toward the left get better for the D while those to the right get better for the O. Any results less than 0 become 0, any greater than 99 become 99. Any results exceeding an end zone lead to a score—either a touchdown or safety. Once the Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays Numbers Chart is complete, determining the outcome of each play is simply a matter of rolling the dice, adding two numbers together, and using the Play Result Chart for that O play.

Use the Time Sheet (pg. 16, you'll need a lot of these) to keep track of the time remaining in each quarter, by indicating the time used for each play in the upper list (cross out either a 30 or 10 seconds for each play. Plays with asterisks in the Plays Results Charts, and plays following timeouts, take only 10 seconds. Each coach gets three TOs per half), and a running total below now and then. Keep track of the down to the right (use a dime?), and the scores in the margins.

Use the Position Sheet (pg. 17) to keep track of the ball position and the line to gain (use a couple of dimes?).

Use the Injury Charts (pg. 14) to determine the player injured and duration of the injury. INJs to the left are Offensive, while those to the right are Defensive. Injured players may be replaced by any reserve player (card) of the same position, otherwise by an unnamed player (card) with ratings 1 less than the team's worst ranked remaining player of the same position or the injured player, whichever is worse. In order to avoid the hassle of computing new Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays numbers, just subtract 3 from each for the affected team—should be close enough.

Final Teams Plays Vs. Plays Numbers Sheet 2 (final numbers to be added or subtracted from the dice roll to determine the final result of the play). The work for this is on pgs. 19, and 20.

For Team _2_(recommended)_ on O and Team _1_(recommended)_ on D: {final O value for play, minus {final D value for play, plus {play vs. play result, equals {final number for play}}
